Discuss IT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain.

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

I believe that one huge factor on how the people are reacting to these issues have to do with the fact that they are unhappy with who currently fills the role of President. Many citizens are upset with the fact that President Trump has no political experience, so they automatically assume that he has no clue what he is doing. Also, Trump is taking head on several challenges that are very sensitive and personal to some people. For example, one massive issue that has come up is that Trump is in the process of taking away funding for Planned Parenthood; which many people do not agree with. Thousands of people go to those clinics to resolve their very personal issues dealing with unplanned pregnancies. Issues like this that have yet to be tackled lead to big reactions from the people. I believe that sooner or later, our country will realize that arguing will do no good and that we might as well stick together as one nation. Even though President Trump may not be the near perfect leader that America had imagined, he is still a leader that I think will have a positive impact on our country.
